GET AHEAD OF THE CURVE THIS FALL

These organizational hacks will make your family life easier

September is here, and the pace of life suddenly increases! Families are busy coordinating business meetings and back-to-school chaos. Stress runs high when you are rushing out the door, so why not step back, organize in advance and enjoy smooth transitions. This will give you energy and attention for more important things. Here are some practical organizational-hacks:

Fridge Frenzy

The kitchen is the most frequently used room in the house, so why not organize it specifically for your family's needs? Designate sections of the refrigerator with ingredients for spouses or school-age children to pack their own lunches: bread and peanut butter, pre-cut veggies, hardboiled eggs or prepared meat, bread, fruit etc. It keeps decision making easy, as time is of the essence.

Pre-emptive Snack Attack

Add a few plastic bins to your pantry, each with its own healthy snack such as pretzels, trail mix, granola bars, and applesauce. Your kids will be empowered to make their own choices and develop healthy eating habits. If you buy snacks in bulk, immediately portion them out into smaller baggies, pre-made and ready to grab and go!

Morning Glory

If you are dropping kids off in the mornings, another great life hack is to fill a car organizer that hangs off the back of the front car seats. Your kids can find everything they need to finish eating or grooming before they get dropped off: grab n' go breakfast options like protein-filled granola bars, extra hairbrushes, hair gel, baby wipes (for messy faces), hand sanitizer, and water bottles.

Good to Go

Consider pre-loading storage boxes into your truck with all the sports equipment needed for this week's extracurricular activities. It will save you running around trying to find those cleats and balls last minute
